The Raven and the Loon

Rachel Qitsualik-Tinsley, Sean Qitsualik-Tinsley, Kim Smith

In the time before animals were as they are today, Raven and Loon were both white. Their feathers had no colour at all. Raven spent his days swooping through the sky trying to fight off his incessant boredom, while loon spent her days in her iglu working away on her sewing. One day, too bored to even fly, Raven visited Loon and suggested a sewing game that would give their feathers some much-needed colour. The results—not at all what the two birds expected—led to Raven and Loon acquiring their now-familiar coats.

"Based on Cree painter Allen Sapp's childhood memories of life on a reserve in Saskatchewan, The Song Within My Heart tells of a young boy who is getting ready to go to a powwow. Bouchard's lyrical text, with its thoughtfully chosen words, evokes a quiet, introspective mood. And Now You Know

50 Native American Legends
John W. Friesen, Virginia Lyons Friesen

Before the printing press dominated the world of formal communications, families, communities, and cultures relied on the oral tradition to pass along revered knowledge. Valued cultural content, particularly spiritual and historical beliefs and practices, was transmitted through legends and stories shared between generations by acknowledged storytellers and Elders. This practice was very much the case with Indigenous communities throughout North America. Represented here are legends from many Native groups, including Sioux, Cree, Hopi, Haida, Iroquois, Creek, Dakota, and others.

Math in A Cultural Context

This series is a supplemental math curriculum based on the traditional wisdom and practices of the Yup'ik people of southwest Alaska. The result of more than a decade of collaboration between math educators and Yup'ik elders, these modules connect cultural knowledge to school mathematics. Students are challenged to communicate and think mathematically as they solve inquiry-oriented problems, which require creative, practical and analytical thinking. Classroom-based research strongly suggests that students engaged in this curriculum can develop deeper mathematical understandings than students who engage only with a procedure-oriented, paper-and-pencil curriculum.

Introducing Circle A Complete ESL/Language Arts Program for Native Students from Kindergarten to Grade Three

CIRCLE is a language development program for English as a Second Language from Kindergarten to Grade Three. It is designed particularly to meet the needs of Aboriginal children who come to school speaking only or mainly a Native language. CIRCLE's flexible approach to language instruction makes it usable in many areas beyond this core group.

“The CIRCLE texts constitute a valuable supplement for social studies curricula intended for learners of any ethnic background, including students who are native speakers of English and come from middle-class families.”

Gina Cantoni-Harvey
Professor of English
Northern Arizona University

CIRCLE incorporates recent developments in pedagogical thinking. Its progressive teaching philosophy is suitable not only for ESL applications but also for comprehensive Language Arts programs.

The CIRCLE curriculum has a strong visual-to-audio approach which encourages natural learning styles of the Aboriginal child. CIRCLE is strong on the whole word/sight reading method with phonics appearing in sound context.

“It is very refreshing to find a curriculum of such outstanding quality written by professionals who have obviously taken the time and research effort to provide a necessary tool for the learning enjoyment of our Indian children.”
